gateway to the great books are great writings which selections include short stories plays essays scientific papers speeches and letters each selection represents a primary original and fundamental contribution to ones understanding of the universe and themselves there are over 135 authors 225 selections and 95 original illustrations selections include works from ernest hemingway f scott fitzgerald t s eliot mark twain and more this set will help introduce oneself to good literature and the great books of the western world despite its rough and tumble image chicago has long been identified as a city where books take center stage in fact a volume by a j liebling gave the second city its nickname uppton sinclair s the jungle arose from the midwestern capital s most infamous industry the great chicago fire led to the founding of the chicago public library the city has fostered writers such as nelson algren saul bellow and gwendolyn brooks chicago s literary magazines the little review and poetry introduced the world to eliot hemingway joyce and pound the city s robust commercial printing industry supported a flourishing culture of the book with this beautifully produced collection chicago s rich literary tradition finally gets its due chicago by the book profiles 101 landmark publications about chicago from the past 170 years that have helped define the city and its image each title carefully selected by the caxton club a venerable chicago bibliophilic organization is the focus of an illustrated essay by a leading scholar writer or bibliophile arranged chronologically to show the history of both the city and its books the essays can be read in order from mrs john h kinzie s 1844 narrative of the massacre of chicago to sara paretsky s 2015 crime novel brush back or one can dip in and out savoring reflections on the arts sports crime race relations urban planning politics and even mrs o leary s legendary cow the selections do not shy from the underside of the city recognizing that its grit and graft have as much a place in the written imagination as soaring odes and boosterism as neil harris observes in his introduction even when chicagoans celebrate their hearth and home they do so while acknowledging deep seated flaws at the same time this collection heartily reminds us all of what makes chicago as norman mailer called it the great american city with essays from among others ira berkow thomas dyja ann durkin keating alex kotlowitz toni preckwinkle frank rich don share carl smith regina taylor garry wills and william julius wilson and featuring works by saul bellow gwendolyn brooks sandra cisneros clarence darrow erik larson david mamet studs terkel ida b wells barnett frank lloyd wright and many more examines the form of the novel capacious defined and across its history exploring the interplay of conformity and experimentation in classic and outlier examples of the genre with a focus on joseph conrad henry james and virginia woolf what do the humanities have to offer in the twenty first century are there compelling reasons to go on teaching the literate arts when the schools themselves have become battlefields does it make sense to go on writing when the world itself is overrun with books that no one reads in these simultaneously personal and erudite reflections on the future of higher education richard e miller moves from the headlines to the classroom focusing in on how teachers and students alike confront the existential challenge of making life meaningful in meditating on the violent events that now dominate our daily lives school shootings suicide bombings terrorist attacks contemporary warfare miller prompts a reconsideration of the role that institutions of higher education play in shaping our daily experiences and asks us to reimagine the humanities as centrally important to the maintenance of a compassionate secular society by concentrating on those moments when individuals and institutions meet and violence results writing at the end of the world provides the framework that students and teachers require to engage in the work of building a better future beginning with a short intellectual history of the academic culture wars eric adler s book examines popular polemics including those by allan bloom and dinesh d souza and considers the oddly marginal role of classical studies in these conflicts in presenting a brief history of classics in american education the volume sheds light on the position of the humanities in general adler dissects three significant controversies from the era the so called aip affair which supposedly pitted a conservative journal editor against his feminist detractors the brouhaha surrounding martin bernal s contentious black athena project and the dustup associated with victor davis hanson and john heath s fire breathing jeremiad who killed homer he concludes by considering these controversies as a means to end the crisis for classical studies in american education how can the study of antiquity and the humanities thrive in the contemporary academy this book provides workable solutions to end the crisis for classics and for the humanities as well this major work also includes findings from a survey of american classical scholars offering the first broadly representative impression of what they think about their discipline and its prospects for the future adler also conducted numerous in depth interviews with participants in the controversies discussed allowing readers to gain the most reliable information possible about these controversies those concerned about the liberal arts and the best way to educate young americans should read this book accessible and jargon free this narrative of scholarly scandals and their context makes for both enjoyable and thought provoking reading
